Education Series: Narratives from History to Present Day

On April 24, 2024, Vermont Truth and Reconciliation launched its Education Series: Narratives from History to Present Day. Members of the public attended a panel consisting of Native American and French Indian advocates, leaders, and scholars who addressed historical and contemporary experiences of oppression.

The monthly Education Series aims to elevate the voices of Act 128 communities through a conversational learning model. As one member of the public stated about April 24th's panel: "it is good to witness a clear, informative, educational presentation conducted in a civil, inclusive manner". The VTRC is grateful to the panelists and community for their insights and engagement.

Please visit www.vtrc.vermont.gov to register and access recordings of the panel. On Wednesday, May 22nd from 5pm - 6:30pm, the VTRC will host the second panel titled "Experiences of People with Disabilities".
